In this highlight, Colette Ngoya speaks on... the need for basic education in the law

The transcript of the highlight begins on the following page.

00:00 Personally I feel everybody should be trained in law. Not in-depth but since our lives is administered in a way, there is no way you can escape law, so maybe – I feel, you know like in the secondary school they should give people some basics knowledge of law because you really need it to function I think.
