

Voices from the Rwanda Tribunal

Official Transcript: Charles Adeogun-Phillips (Highlight)

Role:	Prosecutor
Country of Origin:	Nigeria/Great Britain
Interview Date:	6 November 2008
Location:	Arusha, Tanzania
Interviewers:	Lisa P. Nathan Robert Utter
Videographer:	Max Andrews
Interpreter:	None

In this highlight, Charles Adeogun-Phillips speaks on... the impact of locating the Tribunal outside Rwanda

The transcript of the highlight begins on the following page.

- 00:00 We are so far removed from the victims of these crimes that they don't even understand what goes on here. I go to Rwanda, I have Rwandan friends. Half the time when they see me: "What's going on there?" Which is sad.
- 00:16 Outreach or no outreach, it's a, it's a different ball game when you can walk into a court room and follow the trial of someone who raped your sister or killed your father. It has to have a healing effect and aid to reconciliation. The fact that the tribunals are situated away from the location, the locus, must, must have some, some, some negative bearing on their success.